Excerpt: . . . in fluence with every election, and the hands of the Republicans were free, in the presidency and in Congress. The new unanimity in affairs sprang, not out of the repeals, retrenchments, and reforms of the party newly come to power, so much as out of its popular action in national affairs. For all their professions of an opposite set of principles in government, its leaders acted as its more conservative supporters had expected, --very much as Washington or Adams or Hamilton would have acted, when there was occasion to vindicate either the authority or the interests of the Union. Mr. Jefferson was hardly installed in office before news reached America that Spain had re-ceded the great province of Louisiana to France. It was one thing to have all the western bank of the Mississippi, its outlet at the Gulf, and all the continent between the Mississippi and the Pacific controlled by Spain, who had lost her power in the world; but it was quite another to let it pass into the hands of France, and Bonaparte her leader. The cession of Louisiana and the Floridas by Spain to France, wrote Mr. Jefferson, the lover of peace and friend of France, to Mr. Livingston, the American minister at Paris, completely reverses all the political relations of the United States, and wall form a new epoch in our political course. There is on the globe one single spot the possessor of which is our natural and...
